On July 14th 2021, developers Facepunch Studios were forced to remove the games "furry" character models after the studio were sent a legal letter from the Australian High Court. Although this issue was later resolved in favor of Facepunch Studios, it highlighted the ongoing issues over intellectual property rights regarding cosmetic character items for online video games. The game has received mixed reviews. Rami Ismail, co-founder of indie game development blog Vlambeer, describes the gameplay of "Rust" as similar to a DayZ-style open world survival game, but says it is "a hundred times better in many ways". He stated that the biggest improvement is in how "Rust" handles players' mood. In DayZ and other games like it, he said that players are constantly forced to make decisions about how they want to spend their time: by killing zombies or by doing a little bit of both. In "Rust", players have a greater degree of control over their consumption of resources; Ismail said that the game's resource system allows players to scavenge for wood, metal and other supplies, allowing them to build items and take care of their daily needs without having to worry about starvation. This, he said, makes camping as a survival mechanic far less useful than it is in DayZ or "Minecraft".

The specific hacks used by rust players are often used by other games, and as such have been modified to suit the needs of rust. Using these cheats can result in a game ban on the account in question, but as the game is still in early access this is not guaranteed. Facepunch Studios bans players for using cheats on their servers, however this does not apply to singleplayer and on private servers which do not use the official Facepunch credentials.",
